

9505A Product Launch Q & A

1. Q: When will the 9505A be available?

A: Production units are planned to be available in December 2004.

2. Q: Are there any differences between the 9505 and the 9505A?

A: Yes. Iridium had to modify the 9505 phone due to internal components becoming obsolete and no longer supported.

3. Q: What are the differences between the 9505 and the 9505A?

A: The 9505A will continue to have the same features and functions as the 9505. Also, the 9505A has a similar form and, therefore, has virtually the same look and feel as the 9505. Three differences include:

- Iridium replaced the IR Port with a 7mm power jack. The accessory connector on the bottom of the phone is no longer used for charging the phone.

- Iridium modified the accessory connector on the bottom of the phone to prevent 9505 accessories from being used on the 9505A and visa versa.

Iridium had to make changes to certain accessories to accommodate component changes internal to the phone. These include:

- Battery – we have changed one alignment lug to prevent previous versions from being installed. This battery can only be used with the 9505A. 9505 and 9505A batteries are not interchangeable.

- AC and DC Chargers – there will be a new design with a different connector. The 9505A requires that the battery be installed in order to power the phone.

- RS232 Data Adapter – the color has changed to grey, and Iridium modified it to prevent previous versions from being installed by moving the alignment notch inward. Additionally, Iridium removed the power connector. This is the only accessory that connects to the phone using the phones accessory connector.
